

National Institute for Student Assistance Practices

The National Institute for Student Assistance Practices is the training and information dissemination arm of the National Student Assistance Association (NSAA) and provides courses to advance the development of Student Assistance services in school districts, agencies, and organizations across the country. The Institute is administered as a partnership between NSAA and the Division of Continuing Education at Colorado State University through the Excellence through Education Initiative, Center for Organizational Excellence.

Courses, certificate programs, learning experiences, sharing of best practices and research will be offered through NISAP and the Center of Excellence.

Contact information:

James Campaign, LCSW – 970-490-3238 jcampaign@psdschools.org

Patricia Berry 618-288-3100 x. 3375 pberry@chestnut.org